

Biography

Short-Form

Lux is a chamber choir that specializes in contemporary choral music. Founded in 2014 by a small group of high school friends, the ensemble performs with a dedication to excellence, innovation, and accessibility in choral performance. The group has earned praise from famed composers such as Eric Whitacre, Paul Mealor, and Ola Gjeilo; and their singers hail from some of the finest conservatories and schools of music across the United States. In 2019, Lux was named “Best Local Choral Group” (Washington City Paper), alongside other winners, and Lux’s 2018 album Now Ye Heavenly Powers became the Featured Choral Album on Classical MPR, joining past winners such as Voces8, Tenebrae, and The Sixteen.
